President’s Message

This year’s annual report highlights not only major accomplishments from the 2009-10 academic year but also pays tribute to Walters State's first 40 years. This fall, a record 6,967 students enrolled at one of four Walters State campuses. This is quite a change from September 23, 1970, when a faculty and staff of 27 welcomed Walters State's first 414 students in temporary facilities located throughout Morristown. As Walters State Professor Emeritus Dr. Jim Ford said at the time, “The community shared its home with the college.”

The amount of support given by this community to Walters State has only increased during the past 40 years. And the reason for this is that the community the college was established to serve has embraced our educational mission, which is based on the belief that each high school graduate or otherwise qualified person living in this state should have access to higher education. It is their vision to improve the quality of life of individuals living in this community through education that will guide us during the next 40 years.

The Walters State story, however, is about much more than the development of facilities, programs and services. The story is really about a group of people — faculty, staff, foundation trustees, community leaders — with a passion for helping others fulfill their dreams. The accomplishments and milestones listed in this report are the result of their hard work and vision.

There are still a few faculty members teaching today who were here on the college's first day of classes in 1970, and several of our foundation trustees have supported the college through the time it opened its doors. However, many who were instrumental in establishing Walters State are no longer with us. But every May during Walters State's commencement, their vision is realized anew when over 1,000 individuals receive their college degrees. And it is their vision to improve the quality of life of individuals living in this community through education that will guide us during the next 40 years.

Dr. Wade B. McCamey
President

Access Yields Record Growth

Providing access to higher education has always been at the core of Walters State’s mission. One of the results of that focus is the tremendous growth the college is now experiencing, with record enrollment during 2009-10. A total of 6,862 students took credit classes in the fall of 2009. Another important record was set during 2009-10: 1,029 associate degrees and certificates were awarded during the past year.

Around 4,000 students enrolled in non-credit courses, many designed to develop or enhance job skills. Displaced workers have been able to train quickly for available jobs during the uncertain economic times of the past year. Walters State’s Division of Community Education, along with the Center for Workforce Development, have made it possible for former manufacturing employers to enter in-demand healthcare and technical fields.

To enhance services and accessibility, Walters State implemented several new programs this year. Students at the Claiborne County Campus can now complete the Associate of Science in Teaching entirely on that campus. The Division of Technical Education and the Center for Workforce Development developed one of the few clean energy technician and management programs in the country, with classes to begin in 2010-11. Classes were also expanded in Union County while College Express, which is designed for busy working adults, began offering accelerated programs in healthcare and education.
Math and science camps at three campuses gave rising eighth graders a week to explore the fun side of these serious subjects. Kids College attracted students from a wide background to study their choice of over 20 subjects, ranging from film making to “mad chemistry!” And the college’s Talented and Gifted Program served over 500 students. Each time younger students visit a college campus, it improves the likelihood that they will consider college in the future.

The college’s first mid-year nursing pinning was held in December. To serve more students, the program is offered at three campuses with classes starting both in the fall and the spring.

Dual Enrollment, a program that allows students to receive both high school and college credit for Walters State classes, continues to grow. This year, the first four full-time dual enrollment students graduated, earning an associate’s degree just weeks before graduating high school. Bridgette Buchanan, Stewart Doka, Lann Herrell and Claire McCarter graduated with honors and are all studying at four-year universities now.

• School colors, red, white and blue, were chosen in a student election.
• Experimentally, the Tennessee Board of Regents was created to govern the State University and Community College System of Tennessee.
• The college became a CED testing center.
• Charter class of 56 students graduated.

1972-73
• SACS awarded accreditation to WSCC.
• Off-campus courses initiated.
• Intercollegiate sports began - basketball and baseball.
• Early Learning Center opened.
• Faculty Council was established.
• First issue of Gallery, college’s literary magazine, was published.

1973-74
• “The Art Barn” was opened and made available to the Art department.
• Mental Health and Computer Science programs added.
• Groundbreaking held for Technical Education building.

1974-75
• Dr. Jack E. Campbell named second president of Walters State.
• College embarked on intensive institutional self-study.
• Career programs in nursing, production horticulture, tourism and recreation, accounting, management and radiology technology were implemented.
• 650 veterans, many returning from Vietnam, chose to use G.I. Bill benefits at WSCC.
• Technical Education building, currently known as the Clifford “Bo” Henry Center for Business and Technology, was partially completed and occupied.

Engaging Students Through Support Services, Facilities

Construction on the new Student Services building on the Morristown campus was in progress throughout 2009-10. The building will open in January 2011. It will serve as a one-stop shop for all student services, from tutoring to financial aid. The new building will also free up much-needed classroom space in the Dr. Jack E. Campbell College Center.

• The controversial regional prison project was halted, resulting in the college being deeded 34 acres of land for future expansion.
• The Walters State Foundation was established.
• Tennis courts, baseball fields, parking lot, observatory, and greenhouse were constructed.
• U.S. Sen. Howard Baker delivered the commencement address to the fourth graduation class of 170 students.

1975-76
• Comprehensive management and evaluation system developed.
• Drama program was initiated.
• First Honors Day program was held.

1976-77
• WSCC granted reaffirmation of accreditation.
• Learning Resource Center, Student Services and Classroom Project were launched.

1977-78
• First Distinguished Faculty Member Award was presented to Dr. Larry Fleming.

1978-79
• College Advancement Office created.
• President’s Faculty and Student Advisory councils were established.
• Off-campus course offerings increased, and a facility was rented in Greeneville.

1978-79
• Construction began on Humanities and maintenance buildings.
• Developed an associate degree in applied science.
• Provided team sports in baseball, basketball, tennis and golf.
• Math and Behavioral/Social Sciences building, currently known as the Doggett Mathematics and Behavioral/Social Sciences building, opened.
Recently retired White House Chef Roland Mesnier offered some practical baking tips as well as career advice during his appearance as a guest lecturer at the Rel Maples Institute for Culinary Arts.

Quality Drives Achievement

Walters State has focused on quality for the past 40 years. That focus has lead to recognition at the highest level for the college, its faculty and its students.

Few statistics are more rewarding to faculty and administrators than the job placement rate of our technical graduates: 92 percent. That percentage is based on the number of students who found jobs in their field within six months of graduation. Many programs boast a 100 percent placement rate despite the high unemployment figures of the past year.

Graduates of both Respiratory Care and Physical Therapist Assistant programs achieved a 100 percent placement rate, and 100 percent of graduates passed rigorous licensure exams on the first try.

The Walters State Concert Choir performed by invitation at Carnegie Hall in New York City.

Sophomores Bridgette Buchanan and Cheri Tinney Wolfe were named to the All Tennessee Academic Team.

Walters State received the TCCAA All Sports Award for the overall success of the 2009-2010 athletic program. Three teams (Senators and Lady Senators basketball and Senators golf) competed for national championships.

1979-80
• Student Services area was completed – providing a new Counseling Center, gameroom and offices areas.
• Computer Science Technology program approved.
• Nursing program received Board of Nursing approval.
• Year-end endowment campaign implemented.

1980-81

2009-2010 Distinguished Faculty

Dr. Lee Dell’Isola, professor of Mathematics, was recognized for her excellence in teaching and the innovative, effective methods she employs for our diverse student body. Dr. Dell’Isola has also written grants, securing professional development opportunities for K-12 teachers throughout Walters State’s service area.

Donna Lilly, director and associate professor of Respiratory Care, was recognized for her excellence in teaching and her commitment to providing the latest curriculum and the best clinical experiences for students. This commitment is evidenced by a licensure pass rate of 100 percent and a 100 percent job placement rate.

Dr. Jerry Wilhoit, assistant professor of Biology, was recognized for his excellence in teaching and his dedication to providing service learning opportunities for students. He expands the traditional classroom experience to give students the chance to develop both compassion and leadership skills.

- Walters State named No. 8 safest college in the nation.
- College ranked as the fourth most tech-savvy community college in the country among mid-sized community colleges.
- 70,000 square-foot section of WSCC Greeneville/Greene County Campus that was deemed a safety hazard was demolished.
- Chronicle of Higher Education names Walters State as one of the best colleges in the nation to work for.

In addition to the development of the Sevier County Campus, the foundation has been involved in expanding facilities at other college locations during the first decade of this century. Ray and Barbara Bible donated $1 million to expand the Great Smoky Mountains Expo Center. The Laughlin Board of Trustees, donated the $1.1 million facility located next to the Greeneville Campus to the foundation and the foundation purchased an adjacent residential property.

In Claiborne County, the foundation is providing leadership for the establishment of a permanent campus site for the Claiborne County Campus. Also, the largest privately endowed scholarship program was established in the last decade through a $1.3 million contribution made by the late Allie Pearl Bayless Doggett.

Through the foundation, almost $500,000 in scholarships is awarded annually to Walters State students and a total of $38 million in contributions have been made since 1975. As a result, the impact of the Walters State Foundation is tremendous. And it is apparent almost everywhere in the college’s ten-county service area and beyond — from the college’s outstanding facilities to Walters State graduates making a difference every day in this community.
The second major step the foundation took in facilities expansion also occurred in the 1980s, helping the college meet the higher education needs in Sevier County. Working with Sevier County governmental and private sector leaders, funds were raised to build a 6,600 square foot extension facility, which opened to students in 1985.

By the end of the 1980s, the foundation had received hundreds of thousands of dollars in bequests and raised over $100,000 for scholarships.

1990 – Foundation Funds Growth

The early 1990s was a time of significant growth for the foundation. Mildred Marshall, a highly-regarded retired educator, left an estate of over $800,000 to fund a new scholarship program. A $400,000 endowment was established in honor of Dr. Campbell. The former Laughlin Hospital building in Greeneville - which today is known as the Greeneville/Greene County Campus – was purchased for the college through a partnership between the foundation, the town of Greeneville and Greene County. And a total of $330,000 was being awarded annually in scholarships by the end of the 1990s, the foundation’s 25th year.

Also of major significance during this decade was a donation of 67 acres of land by Mrs. Reese Marshall Ripatti. This land would become the site of what is today the beautiful Sevier County Campus.

2000 – Scholarships Approach $500,000

Again, working with governmental entities and private donors in Sevier County as it did in the 1990s, the foundation would raise enough funds to build a new 40,000 square foot building, which opened in 2000. In 2008 two more buildings were opened at the Sevier County Campus, again funded entirely from the local government and private citizens.

Individuals who were instrumental to this development were Mrs. Ripatti; Wilma Maples, Mary Ruth Cutchshaw, Jessie Cates, Mary Ellen Conner; Clara Ann Short; Jim Hickman, Charlie Johnson, Justice Gary Wade and the Burchfield/ Kile and Linda Ogle and Luther Ogle families.

While Walters State is celebrating its 40th anniversary, the Walters State Community College Foundation is beginning its 35th year. Established in 1975 initially as a booster club in support of the college’s athletics program, the foundation quickly grew and expanded its mission to include academic-related scholarships and facilities enhancement.

1970 – The First Decade
By the end of 1979, the foundation had raised $31,000 for scholarships. That same year, Dr. Jack E. Campbell, who served as president of Walters State from 1974-2004, proposed to trustees the establishment of the President’s Trust recognition program, a donor system that would recognize individuals or organizations who contribute at least $10,000. Lon Price of Morristown was the first to donate $10,000 to this recognition program, which commenced the college’s first endowment drive. Today, a total of 203 individuals and organizations have made donations in amounts from $10,000 to $3.7 million to the foundation and are members of the President’s Trust.

1980 – Foundation Expands Role
By the mid 1980s, foundation assets topped $1 million for the first time and it received its first six-figure bequest and implemented its first planned giving initiative. Also during the 1980s the foundation’s leadership extended beyond fund-raising when it helped resolve a contentious community issue regarding the abandoned prison located adjacent to the Morristown campus. The foundation’s involvement in this issue would eventually lead to the acquisition of that 41,000 square foot facility for the college. Today this facility is known as the Walters State East Tennessee Regional Public Safety Center. The foundation’s involvement in acquiring this property for the college would be the first act by the foundation to enhance access to educational opportunities through the expansion of college facilities.

The development of a new clean energy degree is the outcome of Walters State’s leadership in workforce development. From left are Dr. Nancy Brown, dean of Workforce Development; Connie O’Vericum, director of the Center for Workforce Education; and Thomas Sewell, dean of Technical Education.
Providing leadership and developing collaborative partnerships within the communities of East Tennessee has made Walters State one of Tennessee’s most successful community colleges, and several national organizations recognized the leadership of the administration and faculty this year.

Walters State was named to “The Chronicle for Higher Education” annual list of “Great Colleges To Work For” and was the only college in Tennessee recognized on the Honor Roll. The Honor Roll included 39 colleges receiving accolades in at least two areas: collaborative governance, professional/career-development programs, teaching environments, compensation and benefits, facilities, workplaces and security, confidence in senior leadership, respect and appreciation and diversity.

Walters State ranked No. 4 on a list of the most tech-savvy community colleges, as ranked by the American Association of Community Colleges and “Convergence” magazine. Walters State was also named one of the country’s ten safest campuses and was named one of America’s Military-Friendly Colleges.

To provide an opportunity for former education leaders to stay connected with the college, the Walters State Community College Retirees Association was formed. Retirees elected Lanny Saylor, former associate professor of Mathematics, as the first president.
