Eight Honored With Walters State 2012 Distinguished Alumni Awards

Walters State Community College has honored eight alumni with its highest distinction: distinguished alumnus. The awards were presented at the annual meeting of the Walters State Foundation trustees at the Morristown campus in May.

Recipients of the 2012 Distinguished Alumni in Civic Achievement Award are Mayor Bill Brittain, Eddie Davis and Evonne Surber-Green. Randy Clark, F. Braxton Terry and Judge Michael Murphy received the 2012 Distinguished Alumni in Professional Achievement Award. Ryan Cabbage received the 2012 Distinguished Alumni in Athletic Achievement and Dr. Crystal Rice received the 2012 Distinguished Alumni in Community/Volunteer Service Award.

“On choosing the annual meeting of the foundation as the setting for honoring alumni, McCamey said “nothing better represents or is more symbolic of this foundation’s mission and purpose than the accomplishments of our graduates.”

Brittain ('78) is currently Hamblen County mayor and has spent much of his life in public service. He led the Senators tennis team to three national junior college tournaments as a student and, later, a coach. Brittain had a distinguished career in broadcasting and was named the Tennessee Broadcaster of the Year by the Associated Press. In 1994, he was appointed Hamblen County trustee. In 2010, he was elected Hamblen County mayor.

Davis ('85), of Morristown, served for 18 years as a member of the college's Child Development Technical Education degree advisory board. For 32 years, Davis was the executive director of the Youth Emergency Shelter. He and his wife, Betty, supervised

Continued on page 3

Walters State Community College honored eight alumni with the 2012 Distinguished Alumni Awards during the annual meeting of the Walters State Foundation trustees. Seated from left are Judge Michael Murphy, Evonne Surber-Green, Dr. Crystal Rice, Randy Clark; Standing are, from left, Dr. Wade McCamey, president of Walters State, Eddie Davis, Mayor Bill Brittain, F. Braxton “Brack” Terry, Ryan Cabbage and Wanda Harrell, coordinator of Alumni Affairs at Walters State.
By 2018, more than half of all jobs in Tennessee will require some form of postsecondary degree or certificate.

At the state and national levels, community colleges are being looked to as vehicles for increasing higher education degree attainment rates and training our nation’s workforce. Community colleges enroll almost half of U.S. college undergraduates. We also prepare over half of the country’s registered nurses and the majority of other health-care workers and 80 percent of first responders such as paramedics, police officers and firefighters.

Furthermore, community colleges are in a position to adapt and respond quickly to the needs of the local workforce. At Walters State, we work closely with area businesses, industries, healthcare organizations and governmental and educational entities to ensure that our students graduate with the knowledge and skills required to succeed in the 21st-century economy. Many of the graduates from the WSCC Class of 2012 had enrolled at Walters State to learn new skills after losing their jobs during the recent economic recession.

Walters State and other Tennessee community colleges already have high completion and job placement rates in our technical education programs. At Walters State, the job placement rate for technical education graduates is 92 percent. And the average job placement rate for Tennessee community college students who graduate from either a four-year university parallel or technical education program is 89 percent.

However, we have a renewed focus on increasing the retention and completion rates of our students, especially those enrolled in four-year transfer programs.

Leading the way in this effort to increase college completion rates are the state of Tennessee and the college’s governing board, the Tennessee Board of Regents. In 2010, the Tennessee General Assembly enacted the Complete College Tennessee Act (CCTA). The overarching goal of the CCTA is for the state to meet the projected national average in educational attainment by 2025. Included in the CCTA legislation was a mandate for a comprehensive statewide community college system of coordinated programs and services.

This new community college system has a new, official name: Tennessee’s Community Colleges. A statewide marketing campaign to promote the benefits and enhance the awareness of Tennessee’s Community Colleges will be launched in the near future.

Also in support of the CCTA, the Tennessee Transfer Pathways (TTP) program was developed. The TTP program provides students who want to complete a bachelor’s degree a guarantee that their credits will transfer to a public university in Tennessee if they choose any one of 50 different majors offering transfer pathways. The TTP also includes many private Tennessee four-year colleges and universities.

These are just a couple of the many initiatives the TBR and Walters State are implementing to improve the state’s college retention and graduation rates. Walters State and other community colleges are well positioned to meet this challenge.
Eight Individuals Receive 2012 Distinguished Alumni Awards

(Continued from page 1)

the shelter in providing around-the-clock care for over 12,500 children in crisis. He has served many committees and task forces. Since 1991, he has served as the Hamblen County coroner.

Surber-Green ('00), of Morristown, is state director of AmeriCorp. She oversees programs and mobilizes volunteers to provide assistance to the elderly and individuals affected by natural disasters and poverty. She is also project director for Volunteers in Service to America. In this role, Surber-Green provides support for public housing agencies and other anti-poverty initiatives. As a volunteer, she trains over 300 individuals for emergency response every year. She was instrumental in providing disaster services following the 2009 Nashville flood and last year's tornadoes in Greene and Claiborne counties.

Clark ('74), of Huntersville, S.C., began as an engineer with Michelin North America and quickly moved up the ranks. Titles included regional manager for truck sales; vice president of marketing for Michelin North America truck tires; and head of global industry standards and government. He is now vice president for standards and regulations for emerging zones on five continents. With one of last year’s distinguished alumni recipients, Vicki Elsbernd, and under the guidance of Dr. James Ford, professor emeritus, Clark designed what is now known as the Dr. James Ford Observatory. Clark was also one of the first students to win a state-wide award while at Walters State – an individual award for debate.

Murphy ('77) has had a distinguished career in law, both in private practice and as a judge. He worked in Morristown’s first legal aid office, giving free legal assistance to those in need. He also practiced as an elder law attorney for the East Tennessee Human Resource Agency. He has headed his own firm for the past 32 years. He has served as Morristown Municipal Court Judge and as a Special Judge for the Hamblen County General Sessions Court. He is a past president of the Hamblen County Bar Association. He is active in many local charities. As a student, he served as the editor of “Gallery,” the college’s literary and arts magazine. He has nurtured his creative side and is an accomplished photographer with works featured in many shows and exhibitions.

Terry ('90), of Greeneville, is one of the leading products liability/personal injury attorneys in Tennessee. He has been admitted to practice before both the Tennessee Supreme Court and the Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals. He has been named a Super Lawyers Rising Star and a Super Lawyer, given to only 5 percent of Tennessee attorneys. He is a member of the Million Dollar and Multi-Million Dollar Advocates Forum. He is past president of the Northeast Tennessee Federal Bar Association. He is president of Ridin’ High, a therapeutic horse riding organization dedicated to helping disabled individuals. He has provided an invaluable service to the college as a past president of the Walters State Foundation and as a trustee. With his mother and siblings, Terry recently established the Charles Terry Athletic Scholarship Endowment as an honor to his father.

Cabbage ('95), of Charlotte, N.C., holds the distinction of winning the first national championship for Walters State in 1995. He earned the NJCAA Individual National Golf Championship. He continued his collegiate career in golf at Auburn University, where he led the Tigers to the NCAA Championship Tournament. After earning his degree in communications, he was hired as the assistant men's golf coach at Auburn. During his tenure, the team won the 2002 SEC Championship. In 2009, he became the assistant women's coach and in 2011 helped them win a SEC Championship. This gives Cabbage the distinction of winning SEC championships in both men's and women's golf in separate years. In 2011, he was named head golf coach at the University of North Carolina in Charlotte. He is actively involved in teaching golf to children as an instructor and director of numerous golf camps and as a tournament director for junior golf tournaments.

Rice ('96), of Morristown, returned to the college to teach not long after completing her associate’s, bachelor’s and master’s degrees. She started as an adjunct faculty member and became full-time instructor of mathematics in 2000. She is currently an associate professor. Rice earned her Doctorate of Philosophy degree in teacher education from the University of Tennessee in 2007. She pioneers teaching methods and works within her division to make math as student-friendly as possible. Rice is not just committed to improving lives as an associate professor but dedicated to serving others through volunteer work and community outreach projects. At Walters State, she is co-director of the college’s math/science summer camps for middle school students. She has also served as a math consultant for the P-16 initiative “Bringing Math Teachers Together.”

Start Training: Alumni & Friends 5K “Run for Fund” Is Oct. 6

Join the Walters State Community College National Alumni Association for the second annual “Run for Fund” on Saturday, Oct. 6. Last year’s inaugural event drew around 100 people from all over East Tennessee. This 5K run (or fun walk) includes a loop around the Morristown campus and construction permitting, College Square Mall. Registration on race day begins at 7 a.m., with the race starting at 8 a.m. The course is relatively flat. Last year the winning time was 20:30.

Pre-registration is $20; race-day registration is $25. Alumni pre-registration is only $18. All pre-registered participants receive a T-shirt. Awards will be given for top male and female runners, grand masters and the first three in each category. There is no entry fee for children under 14 if a parent/guardian is participating. Last year, over $1,800 was raised to establish a scholarship fund. The first recipient will be announced this fall with preference given to children and grandchildren of alumni.

Sponsorship opportunities are also available in categories ranging from $100 mile marker sponsorships to $1,500 gold sponsorships. For more information, contact Wanda Harrell, coordinator of alumni affairs and special events, at 423-585-6976.
Travel with WS to Costa Rica

Join students and faculty during spring break, 2013, on a nine-day trip to Costa Rica. The trip will be hosted by Dr. Foster Chason, vice president for Student Affairs, and Dr. Evelyn Honaker, dean of Business. The trip includes transportation, lodging, airfare, most meals, sightseeing tours, entrance to several attractions and the services of a full-time tour coordinator.

This time in Central America may lead to sensory overload. Costa Rica is home to an intense array of biodiversity and environmental attractions, including majestic volcanoes, cloud forests, stunning river valleys and some of the world’s most beautiful beaches.

“After traveling to Europe the past several years, we decided to look for a new location for spring break. Costa Rica is a tropical paradise and offers so much in the way of natural beauty and natural history. One of the national parks we will be visiting is home to 150 different species of birds,” Honaker said.

Weather is another advantage. While other parts of the world may have unpredictable spring-time conditions, Costa Rica is more predictable, with sunshine and 80 degree temperatures expected during this trip. Scheduled tours include Arenal hot springs, the La Fortuna waterfall, Tortuguero canals, Braulio Carrillo National Park and a visit to a banana plantation. Tortuguero Village and National Park, Lake Arenal and the Sarapiqui region are also included.

“The trips that include students, alumni and friends of Walters State are very rewarding. Everyone has a different perspective and each traveler learns from others. Alumni who have attended our past trips have enjoyed it tremendously,” Honaker said.

While many days will be spent sightseeing and doing kayaking and other outdoor activities, the last day has been reserved as a day to enjoy the country’s Pacific coast beaches.

Only 30 spots are available and deposits will be due at the end of the summer, with the final payments due before Christmas. The cost of the trip is $2,514 for ages 30 and older. The trip is filled on a first-come, first-served basis. For more information, contact Chason at 423-585-2680 or Honaker at 423-585-6978.

1974
Steve Wice, Social Work, is a social worker at the Bedford (Va.) County Nursing Home. He retired from the City of Roanoke Department of Social Services after 20 years of service in 2009. He and his wife, Cindy, have a daughter, Sally, and a son, Eric.

1988
Russell Smith, Business, completed his MBA in 2011 from East Tennessee State University. He is the director of purchasing and materials management at Forenta, L.P. in Morristown. He and his wife, Darlene, have three children.

1991
Amy Cupp Zeh, Nursing, earned her BSN at Lincoln Memorial University and her MSN in 2010. She works as a family nurse practitioner at Pine Mountain Clinic in Kentucky and lives in New Tazewell. She is also completing her DNP through Vanderbilt University.

1992
Jim Hollifield, Humanities, was named Disney Geek of the Week in April by D23, the official Disney Fan club. Hollifield was recognized for his collection of Disney vinyl records. He is director of communications at the Southern College of Optometry.

1998
Christy Lane, Nursing, is director of acute care nursing at Takoma Regional Hospital in Greeneville. She oversees the medical-surgical and intensive care units. She is pursuing her bachelor’s degree at King College.

2001
Micah-Shane Brewer, Humanities, resigned as founding artistic director of ETC to pursue his MFA in acting at the University of Tennessee. He has been cast as Tobias in the Clarence Brown Theatre’s 2012-13 season opener, “Sweeney Todd,” alongside Oscar-nominated actress Dale Dickey. The show runs Aug. 30-Sept. 16.

2003
Mary Bailey, Medical Insurance Specialist and Medical Coding, lives in Tazewell and is patient coordinator at Heathstar Orthopedic and Podiatry Office.

2004
Edwin DeWayne Rogers, Criminal Justice, completed his B.S. in criminal justice from ETSU in 2006. He presently works as a loss prevention/Security Supervisor at M Block and Sons in Jefferson City.

2006
Scott Starner, Paramedic, completed his doctor of education in educational leadership at ETSU. He is a health occupations teacher at Daniel Boone High School in Gray. He and his wife, Christy, have two children.

2007
Penny Collins, Nursing, is director of accreditation and clinical support at Takoma Regional Hospital. She previously worked as clinical informatics educator and has served in the emergency room, med-surge and as a charge nurse.

2009
Kyle Koeneman, General Education, was drafted by the Arizona Razorbacks in June.

Justin Taylor, Pre-Physical Therapy, is now in the third semester of Walters State’s physical therapist assistant program. He says he returned to his alma mater to find a career path he enjoys!

2010
Derek Shropshire, General Studies, was selected as the 2012 Outstanding Graduate of the University of Tennessee’s Rhetoric and Writing Program. He also received the Blakely Award of Distinction in Technical and Professional Communications. He is employed as an SEO specialist at an Internet marketing company.

Rhonda Halcomb, RRT, Respiratory Care, is a respiratory therapist at the University of Tennessee Medical Center. She lives in Newport with her husband and two children.
You probably haven’t met alumna Stacie (Schell) Bohanan, but you’ve likely heard the results of her work – when a television anchor says “the FBI needs your help.” Bohanan has spent more than a decade fighting crime in the 40 counties east of Nashville. Now, she’s ready to take that fight to a global level. In September, she’ll be moving to the FBI’s office in Australia for a three-year stint.

“I love what I do and I love working for the FBI,” said the 1998 graduate. She credits the agency with helping her find her place in the world.

“I knew I wanted to work in law enforcement, but I didn’t know exactly what I wanted to do. I was working at the Sevierville Police Department and knew several agents. They encouraged me to apply and this has turned out to be the perfect career,” she said.

She joined the FBI as a stenographer. Bohanan said the job title is somewhat misleading; the job was far from boring. "Having the opportunity to transcribe many of the records relevant to current cases was fascinating. You really go to know what was going on in the Division," she recalled. After only a few months, Bohanan moved into the accounting office. She continued her education, earning her bachelor’s degree from Tusculum and a master’s degree in strategic intelligence from American Military University. She was ready when an intelligence analyst position came open. In that position, she worked for the office’s counter-intelligence unit as part of the Joint Terrorism Task Force.

Bohanan said many people would be surprised by the changes at the agency since 9/11.

“Our top priority is preventing another terrorist attack. East Tennessee is target-rich, being home to national research facilities and other resources,” Bohanan said.

She rarely speaks about the office’s intelligence and counter-intelligence activity in her current job as public affairs officer. Instead, she works with the media to solicit help from the public in catching bank robbers or solving kidnappings.

“Our agents and professional support employees work very hard, but none of us would be able to complete our mission without the assistance of those we serve. We do receive a lot of support from the public. We’re also using more ways to communicate,” she said.

Bohanan is also the face of the FBI, making presentations to community groups and young people. The Seymour native is responsible for planning the eight-week FBI Citizens Academy. She also puts together the Junior Special Agent Program for area sixth graders and a Young Adult Leadership Program for high school students.

With the excellent reputation Walters State has for its criminal justice program, Bohanan isn’t surprised that her work often connects her to other alumni. Her colleague for public affairs in the Washington Bureau office is alumnus Jason Pack, supervisory special agent for public affairs in the Bureau’s Washington, D.C. office.

Husband Jim and children Kiana, 12, and Ian, 10, will be joining their wife and mother for her three-year stint in Australia.

“The whole family is excited about it. We’ve known we were going for some time, so we’ve found so many places we want to visit while I’m working in Australia,” she said.

And when that’s over?

“I plan to come right back to Knoxville. There’s no place like East Tennessee.”

Choral Alumni Join Students for Spring Performance

Former members of the Walters State Sensations and the WSCC Choir joined current students for their spring choral concert. Alumni ranged from members of the Class of ’94 to recent graduates. While choir members enjoyed renewing old friendships and meeting new friends, the highlight for them was the opportunity to sing again. Many now direct school or church choirs and are usually standing in front leading others, as opposed to actually being part of the choir. The event was organized by Laura Ritter, director of choral programs and assistant dean of Humanities. She hopes to make this an annual tradition. Former choral students who would like to be included next time should contact Ritter at Laura.Ritter@ws.edu.
Four Receive 2011-12 Distinguished Faculty Awards

Dr. Eugene de Silva, associate professor of Physics and Chemistry, received his 9th Dan from the World Kick Boxing Council, the highest award given for this form of martial arts. He has also founded the National Accrediting Commission for Martial Arts. This organization will regulate and accredit martial arts at the university level.

Dr. Lisa Eccles, associate professor of Biology, was named a Distinguished Advisor by Phi Theta Kappa at the group’s international conference.

Jeff Gazzo, assistant professor of Criminal Justice, has been initiated into Phi Theta Kappa, the nation’s oldest, most selective and most prestigious all-discipline honor society. He has also received the Nicolas J. Carimi, Jr. Distinguished Criminal Justice Professional Award.

Cesar Gracia, director of the Regional Law Enforcement Academy, has been selected to sit on the Tennessee High School Criminal Justice Steering Committee.

Cheryl Harold, WIA Career Center Specialist, was the first recipient of the Tennessee WIA Customer Service Employee of the Year. She was chosen from nominations across Tennessee.

Kay Heck, associate professor of English, has been notified that one of her poems will be published in “The Southern Anthology – Tennessee.” The poem is about gardening traditions she shares with her father.

Dr. Tim Holder, assistant professor of History, received the first Walters State R. Jack Fishman Author Recognition Award. Holder is the author or co-author of seven books, including the “Ask the Professor” series and “Nixon and His Men: The Road through Watergate.”

Everett Painter, counselor, presented a workshop on vicarious trauma at the Smoky Mountain Counselor’s Association Conference. The same presentation has been accepted for the Southern Association for Counselor Education and Supervision Conference, to be held in Savannah, Ga., in September.

John Phelps, Paramedic Clinical Program director, has been elected as Tennessee Advocacy Coordinator for the National Association of Emergency Medical Technicians.

Marty Rucker, dean of Health Programs, was named Adult Educator of 2012 by the East Tennessee College Alliance. ETCA is a coalition of higher education institutions that promotes lifelong learning.

Dr. Terry Rawlinson, associate professor of Psychology, researched “Individual Differences in Working Memory Capacity and Presence in Virtual Environments.” The resulting paper was accepted for publication by the 2012 International Conference on Brain Inspired Cognitive Systems and will be presented in Shenyang, China this July.

Jane Shrader, RHIA, assistant professor of Health Information Management, received the Tennessee Health Information Management Association’s Volunteer Award. The award recognizes her commitment and her volunteer work in the Knoxville Area Health Information Management Association.

Laura Ritter, assistant dean for Humanities and head of the Choral Department, has been appointed to the Tennessee Arts Commission’s 2012 Citizen Advisory Panel. The panel offers advice on program planning and reviews grant applications. Ritter will serve as a year-round resource for the commission.

Good Luck Retirees

Walters State wishes the best to those faculty and staff members who announced their retirement during spring 2012. Some have already left, while others will be working through the summer: Betty Bowlin, custodian; Dr. James Crawford, assistant vice president for Academic Affairs/dean of Humanities; Henry Drinnon, vice president for College Advancement; Reg Jellicorose, associate professor of Golf and Turfgrass Management; Sheila Morris, coordinator of Diversity Services; Linda Roberts, assistant vice president for Academic Affairs/dean of Distance Education; and Glenda Seal, coordinator of Information Processing.

In the Classroom

HITECH Program Extended

The non-credit HITECH Workforce Training Program funding has been extended and stipends are still available. The program provides six different skill sets needed for the switch to electronic health records. The course program is ideal for health care or information technology professionals looking to update skills or make a career change. The class can be completed in six months or less, with everything online. The course is quite the bargain – students who complete the course in six months receive a stipend reimbursement, making the cost $63. Call 423-585-6851 for more information or visit www.ws.edu/hit. The program is funded by the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009.

Public Safety Program Recognized by FEMA

Walters State’s Fire Science Program was one of the first to receive the National Fire Academy’s Fire and Emergency Services Higher Education (FESHE) distinction. The recognition acknowledges regionally accredited institutions that promote the standardization of fire science course titles, descriptions and outcomes. In awarding the distinction, the U.S. Fire Administration and the Federal Emergency Management Agency looked for model undergraduate programs.
Hey volleyball fans – you can cheer on your alma mater this fall when Walters State fields its first volleyball team!

Alumna and former basketball standout Jasmin Coleman has been named coach. The Lady Senators will begin play at the NJCAA Division III level this fall. Walters State is the first community college in Tennessee to offer the program.

Dr. Wade McCamey, president, said that the announcement has been met with overwhelming support in the community.

“Given the level of development of high school ladies volleyball in the service area, we are very excited to be the first community college in Tennessee to initiate a team,” McCamey said.

The Student Government Association and the Student Activities Fee Committee voted unanimously to broaden the athletic and educational opportunities for women students by supporting the implementation of a volleyball team, according to Dr. Foster Chason, vice president for Student Affairs.

“Walters State is a leader among the community colleges in Tennessee and the Southeast in exploring and implementing ways to enhance the total educational experience for our students,” Chason said.

“I’m excited and looking forward to leading Walters State’s first women’s volleyball team,” Coleman said. “Being a part of something starting from the ground up is thrilling to me. I’m also looking for the team to be competitive in our first season in the NJCAA.”

Given the high level of play at the high school level in East Tennessee, Chason said he feels the program will have no problems drawing players from local programs to field a competitive team.

“Women’s volleyball has a strong and rich tradition in East Tennessee and we hope to provide opportunities for women to continue their athletic and educational opportunities through this program,” Chason said.

“We already had on staff a quality coach in Jasmin Coleman, who was also an exceptional volleyball player in her own right. Coach Coleman has excellent rapport, and we feel will do an outstanding job in developing our program. Our initial intent is to compete at the NJCAA Division III level and hopefully grow the program to the level of our other nationally ranked teams.”

Coleman is actively looking for players, managers and statisticians for the upcoming season. Anyone interested in playing, or being a manager or statistician should call Coleman at 843-543-3149 or email her at jasmin.coleman@ws.edu. Tryouts are scheduled for July 12-13 from 6-8:30 p.m. on the Morristown campus.

Coleman hopes fan support will be strong. Look for a schedule announcement late this summer on ws.edu.

Championship Team of ‘92 Holds A Half-Time Reunion

March marked the 20th anniversary of the first Lady Senators TJCCA Conference Title team to play for a national title. To celebrate, some members of the original team came out to cheer this year’s team on to what would eventually be the ninth Lady Senators’ team to play in the NJCAA National Championship.

Teammates attending the 20th reunion were, front row from left, Jennifer Rippetoe Lawrence, Amy Heist, Remonte Scruggs, Tammy Shelton Eskola; back, from left, Carrey Hedrick, Kelly Norton Pipes, Olivia Presley, Coach Dave Kragel, Pam Bettis Tanner, Misty Young Cooper and Stefanie Payne. Team members unable to attend the reunion included Katrina Burchfield, Rachael Minor, April Gardner, Tiffany Booker, Misty Reid and James Black, assistant coach. The late Norman Jefferson was also an assistant coach on the team.
Alumni Affairs Has New Page at www.ws.edu

The division of College Advancement has a new page on the updated www.ws.edu website devoted to alumni affairs. Visit www.ws.edu/alumni/ regularly to stay informed on opportunities for college alumni. The page offers a direct link to the Walters State Alumni Facebook page. The HUB is published twice a year...so many events can’t be included. For example, last spring alumni had the chance to buy discounted one-day tickets to Dollywood and several other attractions. Stay in touch with your alma mater by liking the Alumni Facebook page or bookmarking the website!

Share Your News and Win!

Do you have a new job or a new degree? Maybe you just have a new address. Forward your information to Wanda Harrell, coordinator of Alumni Affairs and special events, and you could win a Walters State alumni T-shirt.

The T-shirts have the “WS Alumni” logo embroidered on the upper left chest plate. The first 25 alumni to mail news of any sort to Harrell will receive a shirt. Sizes S-3X are currently available with two color choices, a light or a dark grey.

Make sure you include your name, mailing address, e-mail address and T-shirt size. Also include the name and address of someone who will always know your address, usually your parents or a sibling.

E-mail your information to Harrell at Wanda.Harrell@ws.edu or send it through the mail c/o Walters State National Alumni Association 500 South Davy Crockett Parkway Morristown, TN 37813-6899

For more information, contact Harrell at 423-585-6976.